THE LEGEND OF HERMES

„On the very day of his birth, his mother, he left the cave and killed a turtle, which he used as a sounding board, and so invented the lyre. The same day he went to Pieria. On the way there, he stole 50 cattle of Apollo and covering his tracks by weaving branches of a snow shoe.

Two of the cattle he slaughtered and dissected them after the sacrifice ritual. Back at Cyllene he slipped back into its cradle. A winery, however, had informed the cattle thief Apollo. When he arrived the following day at Maia, Hermes is presented stupid, arguing he was too young to even know what a cow. But Apollo, Hermes brought before Zeus. Hermes defends itself with all sorts of lies and stole his brother at this hearing bow and quiver. Zeus decided that Hermes should return the cattle of Apollo. Then Hermes drew forth the tortoise lyre, sang a song to play it and offered it to Apollo in exchange for fifty cattle dar.

The brother accepted and initiated into the art of prophecy, Hermes, and handed him the caduceus, which mark him as a messenger of the gods should henceforth.“
